New Boarding Stable.

THE UNDERSIGNED would respectfully call attention to the fact that he has opened a new Stable at the place formerly occupied by R. Briggs, where he will be ready at all times to RECEIVE AND BOARD HORSES By the Day or Week, at the most reasonable terms. Having had nearly a life times' experience in the care and management of horses, it is needless to say that they will receive the best attention. Fauners and others will here find a good place to bring their horses for a single feed. Good accommodations and easy of access.

on, looking steadily at Jenny's mother, "and the thing I care most to do will be undone, unless I can get a letter to Greenburg to-house. Mr. Smith's house you recollect was four miles from Mrs. Wren's.

Smith's, and the stage-driver will take it to Greensburg to-night," said Jenny writing and groaning by turns, as the sick fits came on her, and Jenny put on her sun-bonnet and started for Mrs. Smith's. Mrs Wren was a little anxious sun-bonnet on, tramping away as steady 'Bless the child !" said Jenny's mother that she was doing something very great and that she hoped poor Mrs. Watson would get well; and that her mother was real good to give her the nice luncheon, great Mr. Smith to carry her home in his minute she began to run, he dived into the woods, and ran out of sight.

By-and-by, she came in sight of Mr.
Smith's house, which had quite a clear-ing round it. She was glad, for she was beginning to be tired; but she was also daring to look up; for Fanny was a great girl fourteen years old, and wore a gold pin to fasten her collar, and had on heeled boots.

"Father and mother have gone down to Greenburg in the wagon," Fanny said. "If you had been here sooner, it's to Lawyer Mace? What can she ing the soil by removing these agencies want of him? I should think that she in their potato and other crops, and we would want a doctor, or a minis-ter. Well, you will have to give it to Jenny waited, and waited, and the day waned, and it was past seven o'clock when the stage-coach drew up at the soil again, as that amount is contained door, to see if there were any passengers, in them. A medium crop of potatoes re-still more timidly: for she thought that He reached down, took the letter, and put it in his inside breast-pocket.
